Back of the casket, near the plano, stood a large floral pillow from the grandchildren of Mr. Healy in Florence, Italy. Two large growing paims, tied with roses, were at the side of the coffin. Cut flowers were on the mantels and in jardinleres. Many friends and relatives attended the services. The burial will be in Greenwood this morning.

A SECOND WAGNER FESTIVAL.

A second Wagner festival will begin at Brighton Beach this evening, and continue on Thursday and Friday evenings. The Wagner festival with which the Seidl Society opened its season at the beach on June 24 was not financially a success, on account of the inclement weather which prevailed during the three days of its continuance. This week's festival is given with the same soloists as before, and with an idea to give the people who unity to hear the excellent music which will be rendered. Year after year the Seidl Society has been working for the popularity of good music and the permanency of the Seidi Orchestra at Erighton. It requires the co-operation of every friend it possesses to accomplish these objects, and there is little doubt that that co-operation will be forthcomins. The programme for this evening is

SUDDEN DEATH IN A HOTEL.

Patrick A. Brady, well known to many Brooklynites, went to the Hotel de Paris, in Duffield-st. near Fulton-st., at 9 o'clock on Monday night, and bired Soon after he had gone to the room, the bell in the office connected with his room rang riolently. Victor Elias, a waiter, responded to call. He found Mr. Brady lying unconscious in bed. He had evidently been taken ill, and had rung the ell just before he lost consciousness. Brady was dead when Dr. Briggs, who was called in, arrived. The body was removed to an undertaker's shop at Jay-st. and Myrtle-ave. Dr. Briggs refused to give a certificate, and referred the case to Coroner Coombs. The doctor gave it as his opinion that Coombs. The doctor gave it as his opinion that death was due to the heat and heart disease. Mr. Brady lived with his wife and a daughter at No. 855 Pacific-st. He was sixty years old. He acquired comfortable means as a stairbuilder, which occupation he followed in early life. Since then he has had no regular business, but has lived on his income. For many years he was sexton of St. Joseph's Roman Catholic Church in Pacific-st.

SWALLOWED THE DRUG IN THE STORE. Mrs. Eveline Foster, twenty-eight years old, of No. Fifty-fourth-st., took a dose of paris green on day night. She went to the drug store of Samuel Osborn, of No. 1.312 Third-ave., and asked for ten cents' worth of the poison "to kill bugs." While lowed the larger part of the powder. An ambu-lance was quickly summoned, and she was removed to the Norwegian Hospital, where it was said last night that she would probably recover. Mrs. Foster refuses to explain the cause for her action.

THE MONKEY SIGNED THE BOND. m The Chicago Record.

Prem The Chicago Record.

Virginia, a desperate monkey, arrested for biting Edward Lowall, was ordered to sign a peace bond by Justice Hall, and the clerk of the court, taking His Honor at his word, compelled the intelligent little animal to hold the pea and make its mark.

Edward is a messenger bay for Mandel Brothers, and while he was delivering goods at No. 3.313 Rhodes-ave, Louis Capra, an organ grinder, sent his monkey to the boy for a donation. The lad backed out of the way, and the monkey followed him, finally elimbing upon his back and searching his pockets. Edward took fright and tried to get the monkey to descend, but instead of doing so it buried its sharp little etecth in his arm, making an ugiy wound. Officer Lacy arrested both the monkey and its proprietor, and they were arraigned before Justice Hall at the Twirty-fifth-st, police station. The boy told his story and the Justice insisted on seeing the monkey. "Is that the one that bit you?" he asked.

"Yes, sir," replied the boy, "it's the same one." The bright-eyed little monkey put its paw on the boy's shoulder and chattered away. "Put him on the desk and let me see him." said the Justice. Capra pointed at Justice Hall, and the intelligent animal sprang upon an open book on the desk and then on the Justice's shoulder. His Honor threw up his hands and tried to back away, but the reducted monkey was unabashed, and began going through His Honor's vest pockets in a business-like way. The greenbacks were thrown aside, but the familiar nickels and pennies quickly found their way to Virginia's mouth, and then she scampered back to her master and began placing them in his coat pocket, while every one in the courtroom roared with laughter; even the Court smilled as the monkey looked at him.

"Well, bless my soull" said His Honor. Capra's witnesses testified that the monkey had never litten any one else, and His Honor said: "Let him sign a bond to keep the peace."

"Is dat de peace wot he bit out my arm?" indignantly asked the small boy who had been bitten

BIDS FOR NEW PAVING.

A NEW PLEASURE DRIVEWAY FOR THE EASTERN DISTRICT.

WORK OF THE PARK DEPARTMENT-A PROPOSED SITE FOR A STATUE OF GENERAL SLOCUM.

Notwithstanding the absence of Park Commissioner Woodruff in the Adirondacks, the work of his department goes on with unabated activity under the supervision of Deputy Commissioner Henry L. Palmer. Mr. Palmer opened bids yesterday for a short stretch of pavement, with vitrified bricks, which, when completed. will be part of the only pleasure driving exit the Eastern District has, with the exception of Bedford-ave. The paving for which bids were opened is that of Bushwick-ave., from the end of the granite pavement, near Evergreen Cemetery, to a connection with the north end of Pennsylvania-ave. Although the figures had not been gone over carefully yesterday, it was the belief of the Park authorities that the lowest bidders were Harris & Maguire, a Brooklyn firm, who bid $1.55 a yard on the brick, 60 cents for the curbing, $3.80 for the concrete, and $8 50 for the necessary excavating.

This strip will connect the Eastern District with Pennsylvania-ave, by way of Bushwickave. The contract has already been let for the paving of Pennsylvania-ave., from Jamaica-ave. to Belmont-ave., with twenty feet of macadam in the middle of the street, and fifteen feet of brick on each side. This paving crosses Glenmore-ave., which is to be a bleycle path and trict will have a pleasant driveway to Prospect Park or Queens County. As every one is aware, Bushwick-ave, at its eastern end is the Clintonave. of the Eastern District, so all that is necessary to put the last touches to this driveway is to replace or cover its grantte with asphalt. It has been recommended that a strip of asphalt in the middle of the avenue would supply cheaply a need for a bicycle path and a driveway along this beautiful thoroughfare.

Speaking about wheeling and driving exits for the Eastern District wards, Deputy Commissioner Palmer and Alderman Ruggles have recently been in consultation over the need of another cross section asphalt street to relieve overcrowded Bedford-ave. Bedford-ave. is getting to be almost a jam of bicycles and carriages on pleasant evenings-to such an extent that there is danger of collisions.

"An avenue further out should be asphalted for the convenience of the public," said Mr. Palmer to a Tribune reporter. "I would suggest Lewis-ave., to Decatur-st., which is being asphalted, thence to Glenada Place, and by way of Albany-ave., to the Eastern Parkway."

FOR A STATUE OF GENERAL SLOCUM. Park Commissioner Woodruff has offered to the committee that has in charge the erection of an equestrian statue of the late General Henry W. Slocum, the crossing of Bedford-ave. and Eastern Parkway, as a site for the statue. Mr. Palmer has had the engineer of the Park Department draw a plan of the circle in the centre of which it is proposed to put the statue. The crossing of these two streets is on high ground, and is believed to be as appropriate a spot for this monument as could be found in the city. If the heirs of General Slocum and the committee select this spot, the sidepaths and sward will be cut away so as to make the required circle. The committee has not yet stated whether or not the site will be satisfactory.

Work is advancing on Saratoga Square, which is bounded by Howard and Saratoga aves, and Halsey and Macon sis, and has for a number of years been known as the circus grounds. This is to be the breathing spot of the Twenty-fifth Ward. The Saratoga end of this long block was low ground, and has been filled with rich soil, so that when the grass is planted next spring it is believed that there will be a rich and strong growth. It is to be inclosed this fall, an abundance of trees planted and the paths laid out and made. All the work except the planting of the grass will be completed before the winter sets iff. Besides the gangs that are levelling the ground, there are others that are putting in the sewers and water-pipes. The neighborhood in which this park lies is fast filling up with those modest but neat two-story stone or brick structures for which Brooklyn is famous.

Work is likewise making progress in Irving Square, which is to be the green spot of the Twenty-eighth Ward. It is bounded by Hamburg and Knickerbocker aves, and Halsey-st. There is to be a shelter in the centre of this square, and it is not known whether a shelter or a fountain will occupy the centre of Saratoga Square. Both these squares were bought under the law which permitted the Park Commissioner to buy the Dyker Meadow property and a large number of other parks and squares. Irving Square cost $70,000 and Saratoga Square $121,000.

PRAISE OF PROSPECT PARK.

A visitor at the park Monday was a brother of Andrew H. Green, who lives in Chicago and has been visiting New-York and Brooklyn. After going over Prospect Park, he expressed great surprise at the fact that there was so beautiful a park in this country that he had practically no knowledge of, and said that he considered that Prospect Park was one of the finest parks in the world. This remark has greatly cheered the park authorities, and they are not averse to repeating it. The work of constructing the foundations for two or more columns at the main entrance to the park at the Flatbush and Ninth-ave, entrances is being pushed. When the two additional columns have been erected bronze eagles are to be put on all four of them. going over Prospect Park, he expressed great
